

Cockermouth Town Council

Risk Assessment regarding conducting small marriages and civil partnerships in the Council Chamber at the Town Hall in Cockermouth

Background

With the general easing of national Covid-19 regulations on 19 July, there is an increasing emphasis on personal responsibility for control of the virus. This applies to individuals but also to organisations that will have to decide their own policies with regard to infection prevention and control measures. Guidance has been issued by Public Health in Cumbria to support local organisations in reaching decisions about such policies, with a specific focus on those areas where national regulations will be lifted after 19 July 2021.

Summary of national regulations

While the majority of Covid-19 specific restrictions will no longer be legal requirements after 19 July 2021, it is important to note that other existing regulations continue to apply and that Covid-19 still needs to be considered in the context of those regulations. In particular, the Health and Safety at Work Act places a duty on employers to protect their employees from harm, including harm from communicable disease.

The number of covid cases in Allerdale is currently higher than we would like.

As such, workplaces should still have a Covid-19 risk assessment in place setting out the ways in which Covid-19 could be transmitted in the workplace and the ways in which these risks are being mitigated.

Venue managers have discretion over when they consider it safe to open and the officiant must be content that it is safe to proceed.

Cumbria County Council has sent a list of venue requirements for its officiants. These are in addition to those required by the licence.

Response to individual cases or symptoms

People who become symptomatic are still required to self-isolate and take a PCR test. If that test comes back negative they can return to work. If positive they must continue to self-isolate for 10 days from the onset of symptoms. This remains a legal requirement and employers must not prevent employees from self-isolating.

People who test positive while not being symptomatic are still required to self-isolate for 10 days from the date of the sample being taken. Again this remains a legal requirement. Financial support is available for those on lower incomes who may lose out through self-isolation.es.

Contacts

People who are identified as close contacts by the national or local Contact Tracing service and told to self-isolate are still legally required to do so unless specifically exempted, for example as part of a national “test to release” pilot.

Management of outbreaks

Where an outbreak is suspected associated with a workplace (or other setting) – i.e. when there is suspicion of transmission happening within the setting – support will be provided by local Environmental Health Teams and the Public Health Team.

Conclusions

I believe that if Cockermouth Town Council put in place the measures suggested above, we can manage the risk of exposure to COVID-19 and conduct small marriages and civic partnerships in accordance with the legislation and requests of Officiant.

This risk assessment will be reviewed and retained following any future alteration to governmental regulations.
